Puchang Vineyard Saperavi, Turpan Valley, Xinjiang, China, 2017

Puchang Vineyard collaborates with local farmers and is accredited organic by Ecocert. They practice sustainable farming using only native yeasts and organic, non-chemical substances, with irrigation sourced from melted snow from the Tian Shan mountains. This Saperavi features spice and tar undertones, complemented by aromas of cocoa powder, ripe plums, and blackberries. On the palate, it is ripe, fleshy, and round, with powdery tannins leading to a finish of blackberry and dark chocolate.

Jia Bei Lan Estate Red, Ningxia, China, 2019

Jia Bei Lan constructed a wetland designed for sustainable wastewater treatment. This eco-friendly system enables the reuse of water for irrigation and enriches the soil with organic matter. The carefully cultivated ryegrass enhances biodiversity and creates a bird-friendly environment. Intriguing aromas of red and minty black fruit, complemented by notes of plums, currants, and roasting spices. Hints of red capsicum and dark olives add complexity. On the palate, it is juicy and well-defined, showcasing fresh acidity and finely grained tannins. The wine exhibits excellent balance in the finish.

Mystic Island, YIHU Chardonnay Reserve, Qiu Shan Valley, Shandong, China, 2022

At Mystic Island, regenerative farming is essential. They use fertilisers from the nutrient-rich skins of their grapes to promote soil health and enhance biodiversity by incorporating native plants. They also utilise lightweight bottles, eco-friendly packaging, and prioritise local sourcing. Elegant aromas of lemon, grapefruit, green apple, and melon with subtle minerality and baked pears. The palate is fresh, featuring zesty citrus that culminates in a long, balanced mineral finish.
